The End of the Line in Morgantown

Morgantown, Maryland, is not only the southern end of the ex-PRR Popes Creek line, it's also the location of GenOn's Morgantown Generation Station. In July it became "the end of the line" for three Alco RS1 locomotives. Two had been derelict for many years and a third had been relegated to back-up power status. Read about it in this High Green! Photo credit: Tom Cahill
