NS Closing Roanoke Shop

Alex Mayes photo, March 16, 2013

Norfolk Southern will soon close its historic Locomotive Shop in Roanoke, VA, and consolidate all remaining locomotive work at its Juniata Shop in Altoona, PA. The Roanoke Shop dates back to 1883 as the Norfolk & Western's Roanoke Machine Works. Additionally, NS will close the Roanoke Distribution Center supporting the shop as well as other mechanical department facilities across the railway. Read about it in this High Green!

Note: The double track line on the left is the Shenandoah Sub to Hagerstown.

Next Meeting: Wednesday, April 1, 2020 at 8 p.m. at the former B&O Station in Silver Spring, MD, featuring a presentation by Bill Hopkins on the Santa Fe in the mid-1980s.

Following Meeting: Wednesday, May 6, 2020 at 8 p.m. at the former B&O Station in Silver Spring, MD, featuring The Best of Steam.
